1. Aims

The aims of personal, social, health and economic (PSHE) education in our school are to:

- Provide a high quality and consistent PSHE curriculum for all pupils at St Erth.
- Ensure that the content and structure of the curriculum is relevant to the context of our pupils, their age and stage of development.
- Equip pupils with the skills and knowledge, relevant to their age and level of development, to be safe and healthy, and manage their academic and social lives in a positive way, understanding risk and making safe, informed decisions.
- Ensure children understand and can apply key messages in the 3 focus areas of our curriculum: Health and well-being, Relationships and Living in the wider world.
- Ensure equality of access to the curriculum, by making adaptations to meet individual needs where required.
- Enable children to become life-long learners, equipped with the skills they need to meet the aspirations they set for themselves.
- Embed PSHE teaching and principals into the school's curriculum, making learning relevant and tangible for pupils.

These aims are in line with the school's values and ethos, specifically the intent of our curriculum – that all pupils leave St Erth being confident, aspirational and self-aware learners.

2. Statutory requirements

PSHE is a non-statutory subject. However, there are aspects of it we are required to teach.

- We must teach relationships education under the Children and Social Work Act 2017, in line with the terms set out in statutory guidance
- We must teach health education under the same statutory guidance

This policy also complies with the terms of our funding agreement.

3. Content and delivery

3.1 What we teach

As stated above, we're required to cover the content for relationships and health education, as set out in the statutory guidance for all schools. This can be found by following the link above or a hard copy can be requested from the school office.

For other aspects of PSHE we use the Cornwall and Isles of Scilly (CIOS) PSHE curriculum. Teachers will plan the delivery of lessons to meet the objectives set out in the curriculum map as appropriate to the context of their pupils, using resources and schemes of work from the CIOS PSHE curriculum. A full curriculum document is available on request. A map of the objectives taught across the school can be found in the appendix to this policy. Objectives and content are

As referenced in point 1, Aims, the school's PSHE curriculum is split into 3 core areas: Relationships, Health and well-being and Living in the wider world.

Relationships

This strand covers all the statutory requirements for relationship education for Primary Schools as outlined in the national guidance. The focus is on teaching the fundamental building blocks and characteristics of positive relationships, with particular reference to friendships, family relationships and relationships with others children and adults. Key messages are revisited and reinforced throughout and content is age appropriate.

Includes lessons on:

- Respectful and healthy relationships both on and offline.
- How to keep yourself safe and avoid harm.
- Making friends and resolving conflict.
- Online safety.
- Equality and diversity.

Health and Well-Being

This strand covers all the statutory requirements for health education for primary schools as outlined in the national guidance. The aim of this strand is to give children the information they need to make good decisions about their own health and well-being. Key messages are revisited and reinforced throughout and content is age appropriate.

Within this strand, at an appropriate stage, children will learn about puberty and the changes that occur in their bodies. This forms part of the statutory guidance.

Includes lessons on:

- Emotional awareness, managing mental health and well-being.
- Healthy eating.
- Hygiene
- First aid
- Illness
- Puberty

Living in the Wider World

This strand is part of the CIOS PSHE curriculum and is a non-statutory element. These lessons focus on equipping children with essential life skills they will need to develop in order to meet the ambitions they have, and to contribute to society.

Includes lessons on:

- The world of work
- Rights and responsibilities
- Managing money
- Teamwork
- The environment

- Changing schools

Relationship and Sex Education.

Sex education is the right of the parent. St Erth School provides Relationship and Sex Education (RSE) to support parents in fulfilling their responsibility. This curriculum is provided in addition to the statutory elements in Relationships and Health education. If parents are not happy with what the school provides as part of this curriculum they have the right to withdraw their child/children from this aspect of the curriculum. Details of how this process is managed can be found in section 3.3 of this policy.

The school's decision to deliver this additional curriculum is in line with statutory guidance

'The department continues to recommend therefore that all primary schools should have a sex education programme tailored to the age and the emotional maturity of the pupils. It should ensure that both boys and girls are prepared for the changes that adolescence brings and – drawing on the knowledge of the human life cycle set out in the national curriculum for science – how a baby is conceived and born.' (DFE guidance – Relationships Education, Relationships and Sex Education (RSE) and Health Education)

A curriculum overview can be found in the appendices to this policy. All teaching of RSE that goes beyond statutory requirements is delivered in the second half of the summer term each year. Parents will be reminded of this and the curriculum's content yearly, before teaching commences.

In order to, teach this curriculum effectively there are many cross over points with relationships and health education. In recognition of this and to provide clarity over the school's delivery, the school maintains a Sex and Relationships Education Policy (RSE), a copy can be found on the school's website or at request from the school office.

Children who are withdrawn by their parents from the school's RSE curriculum will still receive the statutory teaching in relationships and health through the PSHE curriculum.

3.2 How we teach it

- PSHE lessons are planned half termly with 3-5 lessons being taught. Key messages from these lessons will also be reinforced in other areas of the curriculum, through selected texts in topics for example.
- Appropriate content from the PSHE curriculum is also used to support the delivery of assemblies throughout the school year as well as the school's engagement in national events, such as: Children's mental health week.
- The curriculum will be delivered by class teachers and not handed to any outside agencies. Our teachers are best placed to understand the needs and context of their classes.
- Teachers plan and adapt lessons with their pupils in mind to ensure fair access for all. The curriculum is structured ensuring effective differentiation is in place throughout.
- Answering difficult questions/ addressing controversial topics: Teachers must set clear ground rules for each session ensuring that no personal questions are asked or sensitive information shared publicly. There will be an anonymous questions box in place for each session in KS2 enabling children to ask any difficult questions they may have. In KS1 teachers will create opportunities for pupils to ask all questions they may have. Teachers will answer questions within the context of the lesson and its key messages. Should teachers be uncomfortable in answering a question or should a question create an additional context to the lesson, teachers will contact parents and inform them of the question and offer advice and support on how to answer, if this is appropriate. Teachers will be supported by the PSHE coordinator to identify high quality sources of information to share with parents to support the in their discussions with children.
- Where teachers are concerned about delivering a lesson and its key messages they must inform the head teacher, who will support them in finding a way forward.
- The Cornwall and Isles of Scilly PSHE scheme, developed by Brook learn provides a wide range of resources and highlights other high quality PSHE resources for teaching. These will be used in the delivery of the curriculum. Online Safety lessons are supported by planning from Common Sense Media, which provide appropriate and up to date resources.

- Pupil's progress in PSHE will be reported to parents through annual reports and parents evenings.

3.3 Right to withdraw

Parents have the right to request that their child be withdrawn from some or all of the Relationships and Sex education (RSE) that is delivered in Primary School which is not covered by either:

- The National Curriculum Science Order (NCSO)
- The statutory guidance on, Relationships Education, statutory guidance

The school provides a sex education curriculum developed to meet the needs of its pupils and ensure they are prepared for the next stage of their education. Details can be found in section 3.1 of this policy and a curriculum overview can be found in the appendices to this policy.

When a request is received the head teacher will meet with parents to discuss their wishes and ensure they are understood, as well as clarifying the nature and purpose of the curriculum. If the parent's wishes cannot be accommodated then the child will be withdrawn from non-statutory elements of the RSE curriculum and provided with suitable work and supervision.

4. Roles and responsibilities

4.1 The governing board

The governing board will approve the PSHE policy, and hold the headteacher to account for its implementation.

4.2 The Headteacher

The headteacher is responsible for ensuring that PSHE is taught consistently across the school.

4.3 Staff

Staff are responsible for:

- Delivering PSHE in a sensitive way in line with this policy
- Ensuring lessons are planned in relation to the needs of individuals, following a Trauma Informed model
- Modelling positive attitudes to PSHE
- Monitoring progress
- Responding to the needs of individual pupils

4.4 Pupils

Pupils are expected to engage fully in PSHE and, when discussing issues related to PSHE, treat others with respect and sensitivity.

5. Monitoring arrangements

The delivery of PSHE is monitored by Bill Coleman through regular review with teachers of planning and pupil progress.

This policy will be reviewed by the head teacher 2 yearly. At every review, the policy will be approved by the governing body.
